Wildcards in poker can make the strategy more complex and paradoxical. The introduction of wild cards in poker allows a particular card to be used for any value that a player requires to form a hand. Suppose King is declared as wild card, the player can use it like a joker for any suit, any rank card that he would need to make a hand.

Sometimes, the real value of the wild card will also be that which will be needed to make a hand, in such cases it might be confusing for someone that is trying to read the opponent to wonder if the person is going to use the king or if he is going to substitute it for some other value. This kind of play makes the strategic playing more complex and challenging and yes, exciting. Wildcards in poker can be a joker. Sometimes, the casino might decide to use the Joker as a wild card instead of using any other ranked card as a wild card. Wildcards in poker is a decision of the casino or the dealer of the table. There is no hard and fast rule about wildcards about the kind of cards that should be made wild. Any card can be made wild. The manufacturers normally provides with the joker cards in addition to the 52 cards in the deck. Sometimes the wildcards in poker are treated as a bug, where it cannot be used for whatever values the player pleases; instead it can be used for an assigned value as discussed and declared by the dealer at the start of the game. For example, if the wild card is assigned to be used for Ace, it should be used only for that value and it should not be used for any other value. The wildcards game can be confusing to some basic players, some may perceive it to be complex, while some others might perceive it to be very easy! This kind of play where the strategy is going to be complex is the favorite of those people that love poker math and complicating challenges. Wildcards in poker is assumed by many to make the winning easier, but the reverse is true, the winning becomes easier, but it is also associated with lot complex strategies to crack codes if the wild card is going to be with someone else. If the wild cards are with self, the winning is easier, if the wild cards are going to be with someone, the situation is complex for the opponent to deal with.
